Hi Mr Antonov, I have been watching your video almost every night since i recieved it in the mail a month ago. I am currently finishing off my degree at the University of Calgary and am sore realizing that it was a waste of my time, and money. I learned more from you in 2 hours than I learned in 4 years of schooling. Fortunatlly i am a proficiant drawer, and capable at solving tonal tasks, but i need more....much, much more training from men and women like yourself. Do you offer, or know of anyone i can get in contact with for classical painting instruction? I appreciate, so much the video, but i feel there is only so far i can go with it. Your help time, and dedication to the classical method is wonderful, and please feel free to e-mail me with advice on my interest. Thanks, Doug

...How refreshing!!! Thank you for your effort in restoring interest in the true meaning of art. I received your vidio last Friday and have intensely seen three veiwings. It is just GREAT! I feel I learned more from it than ALL of the "workshops" I have taken in the past few years. PLEASE keep your instructions coming forward. When do you plan to publish a book?? Thanks again! !.W. Lackey Stephens.

... I received the video workshop few days ago and have alreedy seen it several times. You have done a fantastic job. Although it is more expensive than the other video workshops, I learned a good deal from it. Please let me know when the future workshops will be available. Congratulations again. MUNIR KAPASI, MD

... Thanks for the video. Excellent job. Worth every penny. Please let me know as the new ones are released. Your technique is very good and the advice is sound. Good to know that some artists still respect the work... Your technique is genuinely flawless and produces consistently excellent results and I thank you for sharing it. I have only had a chance to watch the video once all the way through, and was impressed, so I don't really have any criticism. If something comes up that I think of I'll let you know. It contained alot of good information. Thanks again.Regards,Chris Inlow

... I am so excited about learning the layer technique of the Masters from your video workshop. I do hope you are in the process of creating more videos on related subject matter for those of us who are "hungry" for this wonderful knowledge. Mr. Antonov,

Thank you very much for your attention to this matter. I am very excited to receive the video -- is this one of the methods Ivan Kramskoi used? I can't wait to view it. Thanks again, Nancy Lewis

Hello Alexei, I hope this e-mail finds you well. Purchased your video, and have the highest regards for the video. Wonderful Job. Wanted to ask when you may try to make a New Portrait video..we need all that can be learned from your travels & discoveries into our artistic past. Lastly, What did you feel about the Boston School of Artist?. Respectfully, Richard MacCormack

Dear Mr. Antonov, I am enjoying your video more than words can say! When are you going to make the "second video"? I can't wait! Sincerely, Pat Miller (your student)

Dear Mr. Antonov,

I recently received your video and all I can say is a great tool to all seeking the old masters techniques. My question is where can I find lavender oil? Most of the art stores in the Toronto area don't carry them. And also I found Oil of Spike of lavender in Jerry's catalog are they the same? Thanks Celso Nahibuan

Dear Alexei Antonov:

As you desired, here are my comments on your video workshop of classical painting technique. I have liked it very much. And as you say the only thing missing is the smell of paint. I have learned much watching you paint. A very generous teacher and a great painter. Thank you for your instruction. Please continue doing more videos on flowers and fruits as you mention... Francisca Frugone

Dear Mr. Antonov, I have just recently received your video, I am so impressed and in awe. I am going to start a painting (I've never used oil at all in this life, I've done other mediums) and I am an artist. A friend of mine gave me a recipe for skin tone, if you can, can you give the colors the masters used for skin tones. It would be greatly appreciated. Linda

PS I am looking forward to a video by you that has to do with people and nudes, I will be the first to buy it!
