

Paintings in Progress

Library of images at various stages of the classical oil painting technique process by Alexei Antonov.

Professionally scanned images that can be used both for printing and for close-up viewing. Photographs of various compositions at different stages of the classical painting technique, photographs of unfinished pieces at different stages, photographs of pieces before and after blending, short cuts and finishing layers.

Dear friends, personally, I found it extremely important to observe artists who I learned from at work, they did the same in their time. Visiting museums, I have always been interested most of all in unfinished pieces, mistakes, and short cuts. That's why I thought that visual information that I accumulated for years may be interesting and useful for you too. Alexei Antonov
